Scholarships

GSIS students may pursue scholarships and funds provided under the auspices of the central and local governments as well as the private sector. GSIS also extends partial financial support to students in selective cases to meet costs of extramural intensive academic training and internship programs. In GSIS, many international students will be awarded scholarships (50 to 100 percent of tuition fee) based on their academic performance. In addition, the school also offers a special international scholarship sponsored by other institutions such as POSCO, one of the world's leading steel companies. Korean students, on the other hand, can be granted research/ teaching assistantships or KIEP scholarships awarded through our school's Graduate Program in Area Studies (GPAS). Please contact the admissions officer for details.

General Information

KU GSIS students can choose among five MA programs, i.e. International Commerce, International Development & Cooperation, International Peace & Security, Area Studies, and Korean Studies. Students engage an all-English curriculum that offers a mixture of theoretical frameworks for defining the pressing issues facing firms, cities, nations, regions, and the globe and the practical tools required to formulate policies and strategies to address those issues.

After two years of study, students are being awarded one of the following degrees depending on their choice:

- Master of Arts (M.A.) in International Studies (International Commerce)
- Master of Arts (M.A.) in International Studies (International Development & Cooperation)
- Master of Arts (M.A.) in International Studies (International Peace & Security)
- Master of Arts (M.A.) in International Studies (Area Studies)

Introduction

International Commerce

This program targets young scholars interested in the field of International Commerce. The miraculous development of Korea can be largely attributed to its success in international business and trade. As such, GSIS has particular expertise in trade and FDI as well as specializing in both macro and micro-approaches to aid young scholars in conducting cutting-edge research. Possible research topics in International Commerce include Multilateral & Regional Trade Relations, Foreign Direct Investment, Strategic Management, and Electronic Commerce.

International Cooperation

Being the prime example of rapid economic growth and development as well as the world's first recipient-turned-donor country, the Republic of Korea is a leader of development studies as well as a hub for international relations in Asia. This program targets young scholars interested in cutting-edge research in the field of International Development & Cooperation. From global macro issues to carefully-

The screenshot shows the website for the Graduate School of International Studies at Korea University. The navigation menu includes 'About', 'Undergraduate Program', 'Graduate Program', 'Global Research Institute', and 'Community'. The 'Graduate Program' menu is open, listing options such as 'Why study at KU GSIS?', 'Degree Programs', 'Admissions', 'Scholarships', 'Special Programs', 'Dual Degree & Exchange', 'Academic Calendar', 'Forms', and 'Executive Program'. The 'Degree Programs' option is highlighted with a yellow box. Below the navigation, the page title is 'Graduation Requirements'. The main content area contains a paragraph explaining that students must meet requirements based on their track and year of entry. It then lists 'Graduation requirements for the Master in International Studies' with five bullet points, each including a 'Download' link with a download icon. The first three items are for the Master of Arts (M.A.) in International Studies (International Commerce, International Development & Cooperation, and International Peace & Security). The last two are for the Master of Arts (M.A.) in International Studies (Area Studies) and the Master of Arts (M.A.) in Korean Studies. A second section, 'Graduation requirements for the PhD in International Studies', lists two items: PhD in International Studies (International Commerce) and PhD in International Studies (International Cooperation), each with a 'Download' link and icon.
