

Jeane Kirkpatrick Fellows & Visiting Scholars Program

Amb. Jeane Kirkpatrick

The Jeane Kirkpatrick Fellows & Visiting Scholars Program was created to identify and mentor a new cadre of thinkers who value freedom, a strong national defense, and American leadership in the world. The program was created in honor of the late Jeane Kirkpatrick, a longtime AEI scholar, who served as US ambassador to the United Nations under Ronald Reagan.

Fellows Program

This program is designed to mentor talented foreign and defense policy scholars by offering doctoral, postdoctoral students, and junior faculty the opportunity to work alongside senior AEI resident scholars and develop and disseminate their own research over a two-year term.

Who should apply?

- Doctoral students who have finished their coursework and whose thesis work is in an area of interest and relevance to AEI's foreign and defense policy scholars.
- Young scholars who have finished their Ph.D. dissertation and are looking for an opportunity to deepen and expand on their work.
- Junior faculty who seek to apply their scholarly interests to the public policy realm.

Application Deadline: December 15, 2022.

"The Jeane Kirkpatrick fellowship provides scholars with unparalleled research support and a supportive intellectual environment at AEI. If you are hoping to produce high quality research and writing with few distractions, this is the ideal fellowship program for you."

—Oriana Skylar Mastro, Jeane Kirkpatrick Visiting Scholar

"The Kirkpatrick fellowship is a terrific opportunity to draw on the unparalleled expertise of AEI's foreign and defense policy team in formulating and advancing your own policy ideas. The Institute's administration and staff provide impressive logistical, intellectual, and material support within a stimulating collegial environment where you are free to write, publicize, and make connections not otherwise possible."

—Colin Dueck, Jeane Kirkpatrick Visiting Scholar

Visiting Scholars Program

This program offers mid-career academics, government, and civilian professionals in foreign policy and security studies the opportunity to apply their scholarly interests to the public policy realm. Scholars will collaborate with AEI's resident scholars and fellows, engage in rigorous research, disseminate their findings, brief policymakers, and host events at the Institute.

Who should apply?

- Midcareer academics on full-time or part-time sabbatical from their universities.
- Midcareer government or civilian professionals.

Application Deadline: December 15, 2022.

To apply, visit www.aei.org/feature/jeane-kirkpatrick-fellowship-and-scholars-program/

Jeane Kirkpatrick Fellows & Visiting Scholars Program

Amb. Jeane Kirkpatrick

“The Kirkpatrick fellowship is a terrific opportunity to draw on the unparalleled expertise of AEI’s foreign and defense policy team in formulating and advancing your own policy ideas. The Institute’s administration and staff provide impressive logistical, intellectual, and material support within a stimulating collegial environment where you are free to write, publicize, and make connections not otherwise possible.”

—Colin Dueck,
Jeane Kirkpatrick Visiting Scholar

“The Jeane Kirkpatrick fellowship provides scholars with unparalleled research support and a supportive intellectual environment at AEI.

If you are hoping to produce high quality research and writing with few distractions, this is the ideal fellowship program for you.”

—Oriana Skylar Mastro,
Jeane Kirkpatrick Visiting Scholar

The Jeane Kirkpatrick Fellows & Visiting Scholars Program was created to identify and mentor a new cadre of thinkers who value freedom, a strong national defense, and American leadership in the world.

The program was created in honor of the late Jeane Kirkpatrick, a longtime AEI scholar, who served as US ambassador to the United Nations under Ronald Reagan.

Fellows Program

This program is designed to mentor talented foreign and defense policy scholars by offering doctoral, postdoctoral students, and junior faculty the opportunity to work alongside senior AEI resident scholars and develop and disseminate their own research over a two-year term.

Who should apply?

- Doctoral students who have finished their coursework and whose thesis work is in an area of interest and relevance to AEI’s foreign and defense policy scholars.
- Young scholars who have finished their Ph.D. dissertation and are looking for an opportunity to deepen and expand on their work.
- Junior faculty who seek to apply their scholarly interests to the public policy realm.

Application Deadline: December 15, 2022.

Visiting Scholars Program

This program offers mid-career academics, government, and civilian professionals in foreign policy and security studies the opportunity to apply their scholarly interests to the public policy realm. Scholars will collaborate with AEI’s resident scholars and fellows, engage in rigorous research, disseminate their findings, brief policymakers, and host events at the Institute.

Who should apply?

- Midcareer academics on full-time or part-time sabbatical from their universities.
- Midcareer government or civilian professionals.

Application Deadline: December 15, 2022.